

Insightful Questions That Can Ramp Up Your Success

Want to see some amazing results in your life? Ask questions and then listen well. We have discovered that a disproportionate number of the most successful people consistently and systematically use an approach known as insightful questioning to build rapport with other people in ways that generate much better outcomes.

Here's how they engage in insightful questioning—and use it to generate truly impressive success.

The importance of insightful questioning

Being adept at using carefully chosen insightful questions serves a number of purposes:

- It enables you to be more effective at garnering useful and important information from other people—such as their goals and the drivers behind those goals. Armed with that information, you can potentially find ways to work together that might not have been obvious otherwise.
- It facilitates rapport between you and other people because it seeks to create deeper levels of understanding of all those involved.
- It's a powerful way to connect with other people and provide you with information that you can use to further your own agenda—often while simultaneously helping them, too.

Be an engaged listener, too

Asking insightful and thought-provoking questions ultimately won't help you learn new information or build rapport if you tune out when the other person answers. You must also be adept at deep listening—focusing intently on the person talking through fully present, nonjudgmental listening.

When you deeply listen to someone, it's almost as though you are suddenly standing next to the person and seeing the world as he or she sees it. You become a comrade or partner. Since most people rarely have the experience of being deeply listened to, this experience of camaraderie is equally rare. The person you're interacting with will feel more bonded to you as a result.

How do you do it? Start by creating by saying to yourself, "I am going to have a great conversation with this person, and we will both have a great experience." With so many thoughts buzzing around in your head all day, you must intentionally commit to being as present as possible with the person in front of you. By keeping this intention foremost in your mind, you will greatly increase your odds of success.

Then listen on the surface to the information that the person provides. It's important that you capture this surface information as accurately as possible. But also listen for the person's thoughts, feelings, values and needs—which he or she might not come right out and say directly.

Steven C. Jackson, CWS®
Senior Vice President,
Financial Advisor

Steven C. Jackson, Jr., CFP®
Vice President, Branch Manager,
Financial Advisor

Chalyda Dumayas, FPQP™
Senior Registered Associate

D | A | DAVIDSON

JACKSON FINANCIAL ADVISORS

Members of D.A. Davidson & Co. member SIPC

301 N. Lake Ave., Suite 800 | Pasadena, CA | Main: (626) 449-0330
sjackson@dadco.com | dadavidson.com | jacksonfinancialadvisors.com

TOP INSIGHTFUL QUESTIONS TO ASK

Consider the following insightful questions that many successful people tell us they regularly use in their conversations and dealings with others who are (or may be) important to them.

What do you think?

People are very willing to share their opinions and insights if prompted. They want to be recognized for their views and ensure you understand their positions on important matters. Any time you need to act, it's usually very useful to know where the other person stands.

Gathering intelligence and gaining perspective into the thinking and preferences of the people you are dealing with is always beneficial. Furthermore, this question helps you foster involvement in the process at hand—thereby building rapport and ensuring closure.

What do you want to accomplish?

Knowing what a person really wants to accomplish informs you of the degree of overlap—or conflict—among your and that person's various agendas. It also helps you frame your desires in ways that best resonate with the other person. This can result in a deeper level of rapport and trust—resulting in a greater willingness to work with you.

What's the most important thing we should be discussing today?

It's normal for people to go into any meeting with an agenda. However, your objectives for the meeting may not coincide with that of the other person, which can lead to wasted time and effort and adversely impact the relationship. Use this question at the start of every meeting or when a meeting is going off track because the other person is not meaningfully engaged.

To be truly responsive while moving your agenda along requires you to be in sync with what is important to the other person at that time. This question demonstrates concern and is very useful in addressing critical needs and wants.

Can you tell me more?

It's quite common for someone to state a position that you might not find completely clear. Many people err by making assumptions that may be inaccurate and, consequently, detrimental to the relationship.

The better you understand the other party's thinking, the more successful you will be. By prompting the other person to go deeper, you increase your knowledge of his or her worldview. The result is superior understanding that can readily translate into superior deliverables and greater rapport.

How can I be of greatest help to you?

Most of the time, people are seeking ways they can benefit themselves. The aim of this question is to determine how you can be supportive of and deliver value to the other person. Ask it whenever there's an impasse in a discussion, or when the other person is dealing with some difficulties.

From basic caring and concern to helping facilitate success to building meaningful rapport, your willingness to help others can pay enormous dividends. Whether or not you are ultimately able to assist someone, your determination to try is a powerful bridge builder. What's more, when you help someone, that person usually feels a natural inclination to want to return the favor and help you down the line.

This article was published by BSW Inner Circle, a third party, and is distributed with their permission. © Copyright 2018 by AES Nation, LLC. All rights reserved. The content does not necessarily reflect the expertise of the individual Financial Advisors, or the views of D.A. Davidson & Co. Neither the information nor any opinion in this publication constitutes investment or securities advice nor is it a solicitation or offer by D.A. Davidson or its affiliates to buy or sell any securities, options, or other financial instruments or provide any investment advice or service. Financial Advisors are available to discuss the ideas, strategies, products and services described herein, as well as the suitability and risks associated with them. D.A. Davidson & Co. does not provide tax or legal advice. Questions about the legal or tax implications of any of the products or concepts described should be directed to your accountant and/or attorney. D.A. Davidson & Co. is a full-service investment firm, member SIPC.